MENNONITE YEARBOOK

Brief Statement of Mennonite Doctrine

This is a summary statement based on the confession of faith adopted by Mennonite General Conference in 1963. For the complete text see the Mennonite Confession of Faith. (Herald Press, paper, $1.25, in Canada $1.50)

1. We believe in one God eternally existing as Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

2. We believe that God has revealed himself in the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, the inspired Word of God, and supremely in his Son, the Lord Jesus Christ.

3. We believe that in the beginning God created all things by his Son. He made man in the divine image, with free will, moral character, and a spiritual nature.

4. We believe that man fell into sin, bringing depravity and death upon the race; that as sinner, man is self-centered and self-willed, unwilling and unable to break with sin.

5. We believe that there is one Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus, who died to redeem us from sin and arose for our justification.

6. We believe that salvation is by grace through faith in Christ, a free gift bestowed by God on those who repent and believe.

7. We believe that the Holy Spirit convicts of sin, effects the new birth, gives guidance in life, empowers for service, and enables perseverance in faith and holiness.

8. We believe that the church is the body of Christ, the brotherhood of the redeemed, a disciplined people obedient to the Word of God, and a fellowship of love, intercession, and healing.

9. We believe that Christ commissioned the church to go into all the world, making disciples of all the nations, and ministering to every human need.

10. We believe it is the will of God that there should be ministers to teach the Word, to serve as leaders, to administer the ordinances, to lead the church in the exercise of discipline, and to serve as pastors and teachers.

11. We believe that those who repent and believe should be baptized with water as a symbol of baptism with the Spirit, cleansing from sin, and commitment to Christ.

12. We believe that the church should observe the communion of the Lord's Supper as a symbol of his broken body and shed blood, and of the fellowship of his church, until his return.

13. We believe in the washing of the saints' feet as a symbol of brotherhood, cleansing, and service, and in giving the right hand of fellowship and the holy kiss as symbols of Christian love.

14. We believe that God has established unique roles for man and woman, symbolized by man's bared head in praying and prophesying, and by woman's veiled head.

15. We believe that Christian marriage is intended by God to be the union of one man and one woman for life, and that Christians shall marry only in the Lord.

16. We believe that Christians are not to be conformed to the world, but should seek to conform to Christ in every area of life.

17. We believe that Christians are to be open and transparent in life, ever speaking the truth, and employing no oaths.

18. We believe that it is the will of God for Christians to refrain from force and violence in human relations and to show Christian love to all men.

19. We believe that the state is ordained of God to maintain order in society, and that Christians should honor rulers, be subject to authorities, witness to the state, and pray for governments.

20. We believe that at death the unsaved enter into everlasting punishment and the saved into conscious bliss with Christ, who is coming again, and will raise the dead, sit in judgment, and bring in God's everlasting kingdom.

Supporting Scriptures are cited following each article in the complete text in the Mennonite Confession of Faith.

Cover design and photos: Jan Gleysteen. About the front cover: Just like Mennonites have their People's Place and Menno-Hof and other interpretive centers, North American natives also share their heritage through such locations.

Among them: the Turtle, an Indian museum and archives at Niagara Falls, N.Y.; the Mohawk Chapel (1785), the grave of chief Joseph Brant, as well as the Woodlands Indian Cultural Center, all at Brantford, Ontario; and the Ohio Historical Center, Columbus, Ohio. Two outstanding interpretive centers, Sainte-Marie-among-the-Hurons and Huron Village are found near Midland, Ontario.

And of course, names of places in this Yearbook like Wauseon, Shipshewana, Conestoga, Tunkhannock, and Kishacoquillas remind us of the original Americans.

Foreword

The Mennonite Publishing House is pleased to present the 1992 Mennonite Yearbook. This volume reports the current organizational picture and the statistical record of the life of the Mennonite Church (MC) in its local, conference, churchwide, and worldwide expressions. It also reflects the variety of ways in which the Mennonite Church interacts with, and relates to, the broader Mennonite and Brethren in Christ family of Anabaptist church bodies.

In 1992 we recognize an important historical event which occurred 500 years ago—the landing of Christopher Columbus on the shores of the Western Hemisphere. While this was not a religious event, it has had a great impact on the way the European settlers, including the churches, related to the Native Americans already residing in the New World. The historical article "1492 and Native Americans" by Lawrence Hart, Cheyenne Indian leader and Mennonite minister, explores some of the issues that this anniversary raises for Native Americans. He calls for understanding and sympathetic support by the North American church toward Native Americans.

Nineteen ninety-two places us into the decade of the nineties. For the Mennonite Church, this is an important decade. Our identity as an Anabaptist-Mennonite people of God is constantly under test. Our concerns, lifestyles, sense of community, and beliefs are attracting those who have not been with us in the past. At the same time, some who have been with us for a generation or so sometimes wonder who we are and whether our uniqueness is worth continuing. James M. Lapp, general secretary of the Mennonite Church General Board, in "Shaping Identity in the Nineties," calls the church to take stock and refine our identity for mission. He reports on several developments that are in process to help us do that.

In this volume users will note that the basic features of the Yearbook continue; and, as is usual with each volume, readers will see some changes as well as some new features. These include the following:

First. The list of conference organizations continues to change and grow. New York State Fellowship changed its name to New York Mennonite Conference. United Native Ministries Council is now recognized as an associate group. Philadelphia Mennonite Council changed its name to Philadelphia Inter-Mennonite Task Force. Two new bodies included this year are the Conservative Mennonite Churches of Ontario and Mennonite Christian Fellowship. Dual Conference Congregations has been changed to Multi-Affiliated Congregations to reflect the reality that some congregations relate to two or more North American Mennonite and Christian bodies.

Second. In the geographical directory—"Directory of Mennonite Congregations,"—we continue our effort to list all Mennonite and Brethren in Christ congregations in North America. Added in this volume are the Dariusleut and Lehreleut congregations of the Hutterian Brethren, and the United Zion Church, a related Brethren in Christ group.

Third. In the "Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations," readers will find a change in the Multi-Affiliated Congregations. Congregations are divided into two lists—those who share an MC and GC affiliation and those with MC and another Christian body. In this time of discussion about integration, the Multi-Affiliated MC and GC Congregations will reveal how these two bodies are already interrelated. The congregations of the Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada are not included in this listing since that conference is a dual MC/GC body. Multi-Affiliated MC and Other Congregations records the relationships which congregations maintain with all other Mennonite and Christian bodies.

Fourth. Churchwide board listings remain basically the same with only minor changes. The names of Mutual Aid counselors and the areas served have been added in the Mennonite Mutual Aid Board entry.

Fifth. The "Directory of Mennonite and Inter-Mennonite Projects" and the "Directory of Detailed Listings" have been merged under the title of the former. This change reduces duplication of entries. Users will note the new listing "Peace and Justice Groups." This entry brings peace ministries—General Agencies, Conciliation Services, Peace Centers, and Victim Offender Reconciliation Programs—together in one place.

Sixth. Readers will note that this volume is the 1992 edition. After three biennial issues, our hope is to return to an annual release. This will keep readers more up to date on information about the church.

A look at the numbers. At the end of 1991, conferences related to Mennonite Church General Assembly included 102,624 members (a gain of 328 since 1989) in 1,160 congregations (a gain of 15 since 1989). In addition to these members, there are 8,042 who are members of other Mennonite bodies (a gain of 281 since 1989) and 3,256 who are members of other Christian bodies who relate to MC congregations (a gain of 1,720 since 1989). Add 58,395 members in 812 MC-related congregations overseas to the North American numbers; then one discovers that the inclu-

The Mennonite Church 1992

Shaping Our Identity for the Nineties

by James M. Lapp, General Secretary
Mennonite Church General Board

A Growing Sense of Identity

More books and articles have been written about Mennonite identity in the past decade than in any previous period. Many of us carry memories of a time when Mennonites were a more visibly distinct people. For some the passing of these distinctives breathes wonderful liberation while others are plagued with a nagging sense of loss.

It is instructive that many people from outside the tradition are now discovering our Mennonite history and faith to be very attractive. Not infrequently they experience disappointment at the casualness with which some Mennonites treat their religious and cultural heritage. While some of us are busily attempting to become relevant, these "new" Mennonites caution us about the dangers of diluting our faith into a generic Christianity. Sometimes these people become a prophetic voice reminding us of the precious gift Anabaptism can be in our contemporary world.

Identity is an elusive topic. No group of people by fiat or a single ecclesiastical action can define a denomination's identity. Sometimes enemies of a movement set the terms for which a group will be known. Frequently it is through tension or stress with alternative traditions that traits of identity are determined.

A primary temptation confronting Mennonites in the 1990s is to lose our alternative character and blend into the innocuous faith of popular Christendom or civil religion. While the books and articles on identity have helped to describe the dangers we face, such writings are often stronger in analyzing the problem than in shaping a new identity as an alternative people.

Four Identity-Shaping Activities

Fortuitously a number of constructive activities are currently in process which hold immense potential for refining our identity in the 1990s. I doubt that any of these activities were explicitly labeled as identity-shaping efforts at their inception. I believe the wisdom of the church guided by the Spirit of God resulted in these important endeavors at this time in our history. Together I believe they hold much promise for shaping our identity.

First, in 1985 the Mennonite Church General Assembly approved the writing of a new confession of faith. Through the diligent work of this committee, the core theology for the church is being reexamined and formulated in a statement of foundational beliefs and practices. Even though the former confessions will continue to have value, the discipline of writing a new confession of faith and the engagement of the church in the process are powerful identity-shaping experiences.

Second and a more immediate identity force is the new Hymnal: A Worship Book, being released in 1992. What shapes our peoplehood more than our singing and patterns of worship? To be sure, greater variety in worship practices is occurring among us than in previous years. To the extent that we know and use a common repertoire of hymns and songs, we reinforce our theology and unite the body as one. The added gift of the new hymnal is the rich instruction in worship evident in the ordering of the hymnal and worship aids compiled for our corporate life as Mennonite Christians.

Third, a Leadership Polity Committee has been wrestling since 1987 with issues regarding our congregational leadership arrangements. Identity is partly shaped by how pastors understand their role and the manner in which they present themselves in the community of faith. The meaning of ordination, the nature of ministerial leadership vis-á-vis the gifts of all God's people, and the patterns of relationship among pastors and people create images for children and adults that shape identity.

While these new resources are being developed, the process of exploring integration between the Mennonite Church and General Conference Mennonite Church continues. Does integration exploration interfere with or enhance identity formation? Many Christians testify that it is in dialogue with other traditions (even other Anabaptist traditions) that greater clarity of conviction is developed and personal faith renewed. The fact that the three activities described above are all joint with other Mennonites (the hymnal with the Church of the Brethren as well) has potential for enriching the identity quest. We may discover both commonalities and differences which will either broaden our identity or more sharply define it.

Fourth, continued work at Vision 95 is also a contribution to identity formation. In unprecedented ways, Mennonites are giving attention to stewardship and evangelism at the present time. Common vision and goals have tremendous power to unite the direction and energies of a denomination. In 1990 a new Vision and Goals Committee began work to anticipate the focus for our denomination after the conclusion of Vision 95. This also is a cooperative MC/GC project.

To welcome new members of different races and cultures into the body of Christ both changes us and stimulates new dimensions to our identity. Special responsibility rests with long-term members of the church to interpret the tradition to newer members. The challenge of being open to having our identity reshaped by first generation Mennonites and simultaneously "safe-guarding" the heritage is a peculiarly difficult task for a group such as Mennonites.

Our Identity-Shaping Forces

Identity is being shaped significantly through our church schools and mission and service programs. Few activities develop loyalty and long-term commitment to the church as does extended time in one of our educational or mission programs. The proliferation of historical and heritage centers which often cater to tourists also clarify and strengthen identity for many people who grew up in the church.

While not fortuitous, the Gulf War in 1991 likely did as much to shape our identity as any formal program we could plan. The intense interest in peace issues and peace education at Oregon 91 was striking. To call for stronger denominational peace leadership and new initiatives in combating racism suggest the soul of Mennonites is awake and responsive to the call and teaching of Christ.

Shaping Our Identity Is Possible

While identity formation is elusive, it is not impossible to address. After some years of uncertainty, the Mennonite Church is acting thoughtfully, purposefully, and healthily in directing serious energies at shaping our identity for the 1990s. To not be intentional in this way is to place ourselves at the mercy of societal forces powerful enough to cause us to lose our souls.

The results of these identity-shaping efforts will be different than in previous years. But the integrity of the pursuit contributes much to the end product. Sometimes it is easier for people to lament what is not or yearn for what used to be than to join in the quest for a new alternative. My prayer and hope is that we will greet the twenty-first century with greater clarity and commitment to our identity as God's people called Mennonite. ■ sive worldwide Mennonite Church family counts 160,019 members in 1,972 congregations who live in 34 countries around the globe.

Size of congregations, including church plantings, range from no members (65 in all) to four that are 701 members and above. Congregations are located in all sizes of communities.

Conferences who are part of the Mennonite Church family but have chosen not to participate in the program of Mennonite Church General Assembly number 16,251 members (a gain of 2,347 since 1989) in 331 congregations (a gain of 42 since 1989).

Creating this volume. This 80th volume of the Mennonite Yearbook involved a lot of effort by many people. First of all, much appreciation goes to congregational secretaries and statisticians who provided detailed information about their churches. Their hours of labor made possible this important record for the broader church. We hope that a byproduct of this process was a clearer picture of the nature of the congregations they serve. Thanks also to the representatives of Mennonite conferences, churchwide boards, agencies, and institutions who supplied information about their programs for the benefit of all. Finally, special thanks to Mennonite Publishing House workers who, as usual, worked together under an intensive schedule to make this volume available to you in a timely fashion.

Your feedback. Your comments about this volume are welcome. Let us know what is useful as well as what is not. We know that many changes occur, and a few errors creep in before the gathered information is published. If you are aware of such changes in congregational and ministerial, as well as in any board and agency listings, let us know. We, in the Mennonite Yearbook office, wish to keep our records up to date. Your thoughtfulness and assistance will enhance the work of all of us and provide a clearer and more accurate picture of who we are, by the grace of God.—James E. Horsch

1492 and the Native Americans

by Lawrence Hart
Clinton, Oklahoma

As Native Americans, we need to ask a question about the arrival of Columbus in 1492. Do we celebrate this event or do we do something else?

This question has been posed several times in recent years. In my own lifetime, there have been many centennials that were not a cause for celebration, such as the Sand Creek Massacre in 1864, the so-called Wichita Massacre in 1868, and similar events that are a blight on our history.

As I reflect on these centennials and the 1492-1992 quincentennial, I take cues from the New Testament, for I am a Christian. You will recall the time when Jesus set his face toward Jerusalem (Luke 9:51), for he knew that his life would end.

On Maundy Thursday, Jesus instituted the Last Supper. When we look only at the crucifixion of Christ, there is no cause for celebration. But because of what God did through Christ when he rose on the third day, there is cause for celebration. God made that whole event both a cause for celebration and a cause for commemoration.

As the apostle Paul tells us, when we participate in the Lord's Supper, we should do this in remembrance, both in celebration and in commemoration (1 Cor. 11:17ff). So from that perspective, 1492 for Native Americans can be seen as a cause for celebration as well as commemoration.

What will we celebrate?

But still the question remains, what will we celebrate? A few years ago my friend Francis McKinley worked in Tempe, Arizona. Many times I flew out to see him. Francis was a member of the Ute tribe, and I am a Cheyenne. Historically we were traditional enemies. We teased each other and tried to get the best of each other in a humorous way.

On one trip to Tempe, I took along the book Centennial by James A. Michener (New York: Random House, 1974). In it the author described the whole hemisphere as being peopled by many tribal groups who came from the same stock. To illustrate this, Michener described two groups; one was the Utes, who remained where they were. They did not move and did not adapt; they simply existed on roots and herbs. Michener referred to these as the somber Utes. Their brother or sister group moved away. As this tribe moved, the members adapted themselves and were extremely creative. They eventually built a great civilization. These were the Aztecs.

When Francis met me at the airport, I told him he had to read this book—especially the description of the Utes who never adapted but simply existed on roots and herbs. I thought I had the best of Francis; I called him, "You somber Ute, you."

Francis, as executive director of an organization, presented to the board a plan to develop a program for the native people who were moving to Phoenix, Arizona. He felt that they needed to develop survival skills. He used his own tribe, the Utes, as an example of a tribe who survived over the years. Francis told the board, "We are still here; we have survived." Then he looked me in the eye and said, "And, Lawrence, where are your Aztecs?"

That experience gave me a cue as to what we might do as Native Americans to celebrate 1492. And that is to simply celebrate our survival. We plan to have a special service at the National Cathedral on October 12, 1992, entitled "Celebrating Our Survival." One of the causes for celebration is the uniqueness that we have in American life today as native peoples.

Four events in the 1830s

When I look at the whole 500-year period, I generally break it down into decades. One decade that almost jumps out at me is the 1830s. Four highly significant events occurred in that period.

The first event was a visit by a Frenchman to the United States. He came to this country and traveled north on the Atlantic Seaboard, went west to what is now Michigan, and south to what is now Louisiana. This Frenchman returned home and wrote Democracy in America (New York: Doubleday & Co., Inc., 1969). Of the Native Americans, Alexis De Tocqueville said they are "a colony of strangers amidst numerous people."

Today we are still "a colony of strangers." We still do things differently from the general population. For example, our families are matriarchal. I, myself, will never be the head of a family.

We also have extended families. There are certain taboos within those families. For example, a father-in-law never addresses his daughter-in-law and vise versa. A son-in-law never addresses his mother-in-law and vice versa. These are good mores which help keep peace and harmony in the extended family.

We also have deliberate teasing relationships where certain relatives tease each other, again to produce harmony in the extended family. So, in a sense, Native Americans are still "a colony of strangers amidst numerous people."

The second event during that decade was the work of an artist named George Catlin. He produced well over 330 paintings of individual natives, villages, and other native scenes. Although some of his works may be exaggerated, it is a good record of our life at that time. As an example of some exaggeration, I was recently at the Pikestone National Monument, and it does not look like Catlin's painting. It is there that we took stone and carved it into the peace pipes that we used. That stone—although it was known for many years by the Native Americans—is called Catlinite, after George Catlin. Currently in Washington, D.C. is an exhibit called "The West Revisited." It shows how artists like Catlin depicted the West from their viewpoint. Much of their bias shows up in these paintings.

The third event that occurred in that decade was the establishment of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, a structure within the United States government. It was established (1) to provide Indians with adequate health facilities, (2) to protect, conserve, and administer the Indian properties, (3) to assist Indians in acquiring the white man's skills in vocations and professions, and (4) to prepare the Indian for assimilation in the white man's culture. Unfortunately, the Bureau of Indian Affairs was placed in the War Department. That speaks volumes.

The fourth event centered around the missionary Samuel Worchester. He befriended the Cherokees in the state of Georgia. The state tried to control who could go on and off the reservation. When Samuel Worchester ignored the state authorities, they arrested and jailed him. For his defense he hired an attorney to sue the state of Georgia. His case went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. In that case, Chief Justice John Marshall wrote an opinion which stated that the Cherokees were distinct political communities, possessors of land since time immemorial; therefore, the state of Georgia had no jurisdiction in that matter. That case, known as Worchester vs. Georgia, is a landmark case.

These four events which occurred during the decade of the 1830s are cause for celebration. We can celebrate our survival and our distinctiveness as citizens of the United States. But there is much work that needs to be done. Our work is not finished. I continue to work on various issues that affect Native Americans. The Supreme Court today is not as friendly as it was in the 1830s. Recently we have lost cases that affect the right of Native Americans to worship at certain places and to use certain elements in their worship.

The value of land to Native Americans and Mennonites

Though Anabaptism originated in cities, in recent decades a majority of Mennonites have been tied very closely to the land just as Native Americans. Both value the earth very highly. There are many sites across North America that are very sacred to certain tribes of Native Americans. We are seeking to protect those sites through legislation.

Many years ago, I was in Zurich, Switzerland, with a group of Native Americans visiting many of the Anabaptist sites that are important in Mennonite history. Many Anabaptists were executed in that city. One of these, Felix Mantz, was taken down to the Limmat River, bound, and thrown in. As we stood near that spot, I could feel from my Cheyenne psyche that I was standing on holy ground. Felix could not have done what he was able to do without the help of God and the Holy Spirit. That feeling is the same feeling which Native Americans have for certain parts of North America. We have an oral tradition that God spoke to us in and around those grounds that we consider sacred.

Of all of the groups across the religious scene in North America, the Mennonites can probably best understand what we mean by "sacred geography." I am very pleased that the General Conference Mennonite Church, the Conference of Mennonites in Canada, and the Mennonite Church have passed the resolution "On Observing 92," regarding 1992 and Native Americans. These will help build an understanding between various peoples.

The uniqueness of Native Americans

It can be argued that the uniqueness and distinctiveness of Native Americans is tied to land, as stated in the opinion of Chief Justice John Marshall in the Worchester vs. Georgia case. However there are cultural mores, values and traditions not readily seen and much less understood. These are often seen as cultural conflicts. A sample listing of these conflicts with the majority Euro/American culture, are as follows: (Compare the first item in the Native American list with the first item in the Euro/American list, the second with the second, and so on.)

Native American
1. Cooperation
2. Sharing
3. Patience
4. Religion and life—one experience
5. Family group important
6. Harmony with nature
7. Respect for age
8. Living one day at a time
9. Lack of time consciousness

Euro/American
1. Competition

2. Saving
3. Action
4. Religion as segment of life
5. Family group less important
6. Conquest over nature
7. Emphasis on youth
8. Planning for the future
9. Acute time consciousness

Many scholars are currently writing about and calling attention to cultural conflicts since the coming of Columbus 500 years ago. One of the most succinct statements on Indian-white culture relationships comes from Professor Sharon O'Brien of Notre Dame University. In her book American Indian Tribal Governments (Norman: University of Oklahoma Press, 1989, pp. 37-38), Dr. O'Brien states, "Despite their debts to Indian culture, Europeans treatment of Indians was generally hostile and always self-serving. The pattern varied from virtual extermination by the Spanish to hostile dismissal by the English to grudging respect by the French. European civilization was based on individualism, hierarchy, and materialism, and Europeans considered their way vastly superior to Indian culture. Reared in societies that emphasized acquisition through competition and control, Europeans were simply unable to appreciate or even understand cultures that deemphasized those values."

Towards Oneness

The discussion of Indian-white cultural conflicts may leave one feeling or sensing that oneness between Native Americans and Mennonites cannot be realized. I firmly believe there can be oneness within cultural diversity. "That they may be one" was the prayer of Jesus (John 17:23) just prior to his betrayal. How can oneness be achieved? How can Native Americans and Mennonites become one? A good start is to note our similarities rather than our differences. There are many. Mennonites are a minority within a majority; so are Native Americans. Mennonites have been persecuted and driven from their lands, likewise the Native Americans. Many sixteenth-century Anabaptist martyrs practiced nonresistance to the end, likewise some peace-loving Native Americans died violently over a century ago without resorting to the use of violence. There is still some cultural retention among various racial and ethnic peoples within the Mennonite family and likewise among Native Americans. Mennonites of Germanic or Dutch origin are losing their original language just as present-day Native Americans are.

Finally, the one last similarity worth mentioning is that of family. Mennonites place a high importance on family. One sees this when they play the "Mennonite game" as they meet each other. Many discover that they are biologically related. If this game is to only establish genetic connections, then it is exclusive. However, I have noted that in recent times the "Mennonite game" has become more inclusive. With our youth serving in a multitude of countries including the North American continent through our colleges, churches, conferences, mission and service agencies over the past several decades, connections are being made with other peoples. The connection may be where one served in a ministry of teaching, healing, preaching, developing, or advocating. In meeting a person from that place of service, one can play a more inclusive version of the "Mennonite game" and find connections. These connections have extended the Mennonite family and the "Mennonite game" is no longer based solely on genetics, but has become inclusive. The petition of Jesus "that they may be one" is beginning to be realized. Let us be open to this oneness. ■

—Edited from an address given at the symposium "Cristobal Colón and the Mennonites 1492-1992" held at the Prince of Peace Iglesia Menonita, Corpus Christi, Texas, on October 19-20, 1991. This event was sponsored by the Mennonite Church Historical Committee. Hart is a chief of the Cheyenne Native Americans and the administrator of the Cheyenne Cultural Center in Clinton, Oklahoma. He is also an ordained minister in the General Conference Mennonite Church.

Directory of North American Congregations

This directory lists Mennonite Church congregations according to the country, state or province, and city in which they are located. Within each country (Canada, United States, and other), congregations are listed alphabetically. This directory includes all Mennonite Church congregations listed in the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations," "Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations," and the "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences."

In addition, it includes all congregations listed in the "Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies." These include Beachy Amish (BA) and Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church (EP). Also included are other congregations affiliated with church bodies recognized by Mennonite World Conference. These include Brethren in Christ (BIC), Church of God in Christ, Mennonite (CGCM), Conference of Mennonites in Canada (CMC), General Conference Mennonite (GC), Evangelical Mennonite Church (EMC), Evangelical Mennonite Conference of Canada (EMCC), Evangelical Mennonite Mission Conference of Canada (EMMC), Fellowship of Evangelical Bible Churches (FEBC), Hutterite Brethren, Dariusleut (HBD), Hutterite Brethren, Lehrerleut (HBL), Hutterite Society of Brothers (HSB), Mennonite Brethren (MB), Old Order River Brethren (OORB), Reinland Mennonite Church of Canada (RMCC), and United Zion Church (UZC). While these congregations are integrated with Mennonite Church congregations, the information about them is limited to their location, name, and affiliation.

The purpose of this directory is to provide information regarding the location of the meetinghouse. It is designed to assist readers in their efforts to find or contact the congregation at its place of meeting. This is not a mailing address. All mail should be sent to the address listed under the congregation in one of the directories listed above. Readers desiring to get in touch with the pastor of a congregation should follow the information provided in these same directories. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference and church body codes used.)

Effort was made to secure complete and accurate information about each congregation listed. If there are errors and/or missing data, please provide full information to the editor, Mennonite Yearbook, 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale PA 15683-1999. Directory of Conferences and Congregations

Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically. Within each conference, congregations are listed alphabetically. Conferences who do not participate in the program of the Mennonite Church General Assembly are included in the "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences."

The purpose of this directory is to provide all information necessary to contact a given congregation. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations." (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Ministerial Directory."

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412-887-8500 or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure the complete accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations

This directory lists urban councils and area organizations alphabetically. Within each organization, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with each congregation is the person designated as the primary leader who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Ministerial Directory."

The purpose of this directory is to identify those informal and emerging bodies which are developing within the life of the church in urban centers as well as in areas where congregations with a variety of conference affiliations and church bodies are located. Also included are those congregations identified by a common ethnic background, a common bond such as inter-Mennonite cooperation, and a common task such as church planting efforts. Most congregations are members of, and hold primary affiliation with, a Mennonite Church conference, other Mennonite body or Christian body.

For an example of a complete listing in this directory see the first page of the "Directory of Conferences and Congregations."

GENERAL INFORMATION

Contact person: James Schrag, Oak Gove Mennonite Church, 7843 Smucker Rd, Smithville OH 44677 (216 669-2697)

Congregations: Congregations listed in this group are not organizationally tied together. This entry is included in order to document the degree to which Mennonite Church congregations are related to the General Conference Mennonite Church. Since the Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada is an integrated MC-GC conference, none of it's 90 congregations and 13,899 members are included in this listing.

Organization: An ad hoc committee meets to coordinate the special concerns of MACs and to communicate those concerns to denominational leadership.

History: Since 1962, new and established congregations have affiliated with more than one Mennonite body in order to retain historic ties with the Mennonite group of origin as well as to promote Mennonite unity.

Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences

Not Related to Mennonite Church General Assembly

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically by name of conference or fellowship. Within each one, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) and those who carry active responsibility (2). For a complete list of ministers see the "Ministerial Directory."

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location or person. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations" section. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

A Symbol Of our Faith

The Mennonite Church General Board has adopted a new symbol and graphic standard. In addition to General Board applications, the symbol is available to conferences, congregations, and other church agencies. Congregations received the identity guidelines packet in October 1991. We'd like to know how the standard works in your setting. Please send samples to: John Bender, Communications Director, 421 South Second St., Ste. 600, Elkhart, IN 46516-3243 U.S.A. Telephone (219) 294-7131.

Directory of Mennonite Church Organizations and Related Ministries

The ministry and mission of the Mennonite Church is carried out through boards listed below. These are supported by contributions from the membership, with exception that the program of the Mennonite Mutual Aid Board is supported by enrollment in their services and the program of the Mennonite Publication Board is supported by purchases of books, curriculum materials, magazines, as well as job printing and mailing services. Two of the associate groups—Women's Missionary and Service Commission and the United Native Ministries Council—receive their income from other than congregational offerings.

The total of the 1992 combined budgets of the remaining churchwide agencies (listed below) is $44,150,000. These agencies budgeted $6,992,000 as income from congregational offerings as follows: Mennonite Board of Congregational Ministries, $487,000; Mennonite Board of Education, $110,000; minority leadership education, $270,000; colleges, $1,007,000; seminaries, $484,000; Mennonite Board of Missions, $4,201,000; Mennonite Church General Board, $374,000; Associate Groups—Afro-American Mennonite Association, $25,000; Hispanic Mennonite Convention, $34,000.

Inter-Mennonite agencies approved for churchwide support include Mennonite Central Committee and Mennonite World Conference.

VIRGINIA

Fellowship of Concerned Mennonites (FCM), 1251 Virginia Ave, Harrisonburg VA 22801 (703 434-1500), George R Brunk II, executive director.

Founded 1984. The Fellowship is a coalition of like-minded Mennonites whose concerns focus upon the basic biblical tenets of faith which have been the foundations of the sector of the reformation of the sixteenth century known as the Anabaptist Movement, with special interest in that segment of Anabaptism called Mennonite. The Fellowship was formed because certain of those basic biblical tenets of faith long held as foundational more currently are being questioned, modified, or negated, and, because by general acknowledgment, the Mennonite Church membership contains a wide range of conservative elements on the one hand and liberal elements on the other, with the latter seemingly gaining the ascendency, and, because at issue is the control of thought through the schools and through the publication of literature, and, because in the present confusion of ideas, there is need for a fundamental, distinctive, proportional, and consistent articulation of faith. Walter Beachy, president.

Directory of Other Mennonite Bodies

This directory lists the Beachy Amish Church (BA) and the Eastern Pennsylvania Mennonite Church (EP). These bodies relate informally to the Mennonite Church on a fraternal basis.

Within each body, congregations are listed alphabetically. Listed with the congregation is the person designated as the primary contact who carries the ministerial function code (1) as well as ministers who carry active responsibility (2). All other ministers are included only in the "Ministerial Directory" found with each body, after its organizational and congregational entries.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information necessary to contact a given congregation by mail or telephone without consulting other sections of the Yearbook. The mailing address and telephone number listed is the one designated by the congregation as its official contact. This may be the pastor's office, residence, meetinghouse, church office, or another location or person. Information regarding the meetinghouse (location, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Directory of North American Congregations" section. (See page 6 for an explanation of the conference codes used.)

Report Congregational and Ministerial Changes

The Mennonite Yearbook maintains the official listing of Mennonite Church congregations and ministers. Should there be a change in the congregational address, telephone number, ministerial leadership, or any other details of its listing, please report these changes to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. In order to enter changes properly the Mennonite Yearbook office needs the old information that is being replaced along with the new information which updates it.

The same request applies to ministers. Any change in the minister's address, telephone, office, function, congregational membership, conference affiliation, and other details are to be reported to the Mennonite Yearbook office as soon as possible. Please submit current information with the new information which replaces it.

Send all communications to 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683-1999, or call us at 412-887-8500 or send it via fax to 412-887-3111. Also notify your conference secretary or office of these changes. Your conference secretary or office and the Mennonite Yearbook office work together closely to insure the complete accuracy of congregational and ministerial listings.

Mennonite Conference of Eastern Canada was represented in previous reports as Ontario-Quebec and Western Ontario Conferences.

* Source of Effective Buying Income (EBI) is the congregational data collected by the Mennonite Yearbook and the annual August special edition of the Sales and Marketing Management magazine. Canadian EBI data is not included because beginning with the August 1990 issue, Sales and Marketing Management magazine no longer includes Canadian EBI data.

 Canadian EBI data is not available. (See note above.)

Mennonite Church Ministerial Directory

This directory lists all ordained, licensed, or commissioned men and women who are members of the Mennonite Church in North America. It includes ministers of Mennonite Church conferences who do, and those who do not, participate in the program of Mennonite Church General Assembly. (These are from congregations listed in "Directory of Conferences and Congregations," "Directory of Urban and Area Organizations and Congregations," and "Directory of Other Mennonite Church Conferences.") The information provided for each minister is: name, four-digit individual identification code (the code number is assigned to insure correct identity of each minister, especially on those occasions when the name is identical or similar to another name in the directory), name of spouse, address, telephone (while the home information is requested, some ministers prefer an office listing), office, year of ordination, function, year of birth, congregational name and number (if person carries function 1), conference affiliation. See example below. Where information is not available or not applicable, it is omitted.
